A QUEEN IN SOLITUDE.—One of the most pleasing parks I have met with abroad, writes a newspaper correspondent at the Hague—and pleasing because the trees are allowed to grow just how and where nature intended them—is the Royal Park, which stretches a good distance between the Hague and the sea.
The trees overhanging the carriage roads, and the narrow paths wind in most pleasing sylvan irregularity. At the lower end of the park, an open space, with a palace and any number of liveried servants, suddenly breaks on your view. This is the residence of the Queen of Holland, and the name of it is the House in the Woods. ('Y Huis in't Bosch'). Mind, the King does not live here. The two heads of Holland, as of some other European countries, lead totally separate lives. Their tastes are different, only State policy placed them before the altar for marriage, and that they and many of their crowned associates should go along diverse paths in life, excites neither surprise nor remark. But what can be said of the example?

The attachment between Queen Victoria and Prince Albert was something new, and I fear will long be exceptional in the royal sphere.
The Queen of Holland's palace is like many others, with, perhaps, more regard to quiet comfort than you usually see. They all look as cold as Spitzbergen—marble or slippery hard wood floors, without a thread of carpet, great uncomfortable halls, with tapers and gasolene lamps, and you find no room for the old furnishings. Saloons, bedrooms and paintings borrowed from other palaces, with the royal inmates for demigods, and chairs and sofas made in the city, a right back room style. I would not care for a carpet, but old oak bottom chairs I used to enjoy in —and sleep in two, sometimes in three—son College, for all the satin cover seats.
While we were inspecting the apartments, we came into one to give an order to some of the attendants. She was plainly clad, and her ladies that meet with every day. She seems to be about forty-five years of age, and her face expresses both benevolence and kindness. The fantastic paintings in the great hall of her palace were appropriately called by Sir Joshua Reynolds "the variety of varieties."

THE SPORTSMAN'S PARADISE.—A sketch of the Washington National Republican gives a receptive picture of Puget Sound and the variety of fish, game birds, animals and birds with which it abounds. He says that it affords the best hunting and fishing ground he ever saw, abounding in salmon, salmon trout or brook trout, blue grouse and ranch grouse (pheasants), and an occasional bear and deer.
Mounts Baker, 9,000 feet high, Rainier, 12,000 and Adams, 10,000, rise grandly to the view. He says the codfish, halibut, salmon, trout, crabs and clams are better than in the East; the oysters are good, though small in size, but are being improved—soon to be ed out by the half bushel.

He describes the pasturage in the valleys of the territory as unrivalled in extent and richness. He goes into raptures over the fruits of Puget Sound, saying:
"All that has been said of Puget Sound as a fruit growing region has been true. I never saw such large and luscious apples and pears, and the plums surpass anything you ever saw.
Trees, often but little larger than a good walking stick, will bear bushels of fruit—twice as much as you ever saw. Raspberries, blackberries, cherries and strawberries grow in proportion. Strawberry are sweet and grow to an enormous size, frequently as large as a hen's egg. I have seen a tree of delicious picking off at random, weighed a pound.
The fruits are all of excellent flavor and bear every year, not alternate years, so abundantly that you have never seen half a crop on a tree, and never will until you visit Puget Sound." He claims that there is as much bluntness coal in Washington Territory, as the South, as in Western Pennsylvania, and of equal quality.

The Montreal Herald believes that much of the juvenile crime, and of the outrages permitted by the class known as "roughs," are directly to be traced to the falling off of the custom of apprenticeship to trades. This falling off is because of the difficulties which surround the apprenticeship of a youth to an honorable and useful calling. The inability of the younger members of a family to obtain employment not only compels them to rely on the earnings of the father, but from the same reasons the money wasted in vice has to be provided; the community at large is not only deprived of the results of industry of those who should be working and are prevented, but the machinery of law are set in motion to punish crime, which, were its perpetrators in employment, would not be committed.

A telegram from London announces the death of the Right Hon. Richard St. John Bourke, Earl of Mayo, in the port of Ireland. During Lord Derby's first administration, and about the same time was appointed a privy councillor. The chief secretaryship of Ireland he also held during the second ministry of Earl Derby, and again, for the third time, but with a sea in the British Cabinet, during the last administration of the Earl. In August, 1868, Mr. Disraeli, then prime minister, appointed him Governor General of India, a position he held until after the accession to power of the Gladstone ministry.

WAITED FOR A LITTLE RAIN.—We were urged to remain at the Blue Ridge until the rain fell to lay the dust. We didn't wait.
Some of our friends did, and on Thursday were perched on the Blue Ridge, and the time like Noah's Ark on Mount Ararat with water on both sides as far as the mountains west and Charlottesville east. The time is not a very cheerful place to spend the day in. We were shut up in it once for an hour, and it seemed like two weeks. —Fredericksburg News.

A soldier of Newport barracks, convicted of desertion, and sentenced to one year's imprisonment, undertook to escape yesterday by swimming across the Ohio. About eight shots were fired at him by the garrison. He was not hit, but finally gave himself up.

JANNEY'S OLD DOMINION TONIC BIT-TERS as an invigorant of the system is unequalled, bracing it surely against all attacks of malarious and bilious diseases. It is no secret medicine; the Formula is published on every bottle. It is an extract carefully prepared according to true Pharmaceutical principles of the following well-known medicinal barks and roots: Calisaya, Gentian, Dandelion, Orange Peel, Colombo, Snake Root and Chamomile Flowers. Many physicians having examined the recipe cordily recommend it to their patients. At this season, when malarious diseases are so prevalent, every one should guard against them by procuring a medicine of this character. During the last five months we have sold 300 dozen (3600 bottles) of the Bitters, and have uniformly received most favorable testimonials of the genuine merit of the medicine and the beneficial effects produced by its use. For sale by all druggists and country merchants; in quart bottles at one dollar each.
A liberal discount to the trade. In lots of 25 dozen we will deliver free to any railroad station or steamboat landing. Terms invariably cash. JANNEY & CO., Sole Proprietors,
